Shake Plum Tree and Grab For Places On Committees

Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—The plum tree was shaken today. Choice and other committee chairmanships and assignments of the new house were to be handed out. The Democratic caucus will fix the committee slates to be ratified by the democrat-controlled house. Whether the heralded movement to oust Kitchin as Democratic leader would materialize, was expected to develop today. Important party policies were up, including defense, appropriations, a budget system, ship purchase and other questions.

CELEBRATES HER NINETY-FIFTH BIRTHDAY Grandma Smith Was Honored by People of Aumville On Thanksgiving

(Capital Journal Special Service.) Aumville, Ore., Dec. 3.—"Grandma" Smith, a pioneer of 1849, celebrated her 95th birthday on Monday, November 29, 1915, in the Odd Fellows' hall in Aumville, Ore., where about 125 of her relatives and friends had assembled with well filled baskets to help "Grandma" observe the event. At 12:30 all were seated at a sumptuous banquet, the immediate relatives present were Wesley Smith, of Turner, Ore., Charley Smith, Alva Smith, May Smith, Clara Howd, Edna Howd, Helen Smith, Wallace Smith, Bliss Smith and Neva Smith.

HOW TIME FILES.

It was only yesterday, says the San Antonio Light, that President Cleveland and Frances Folsom were married—and Dick wasn't the oldest child. And now the big New Yorker, who was the first democrat to take the presidential chair in a generation, has long been gathered to his fathers, the bride of the white house is Mrs. Preston of New Jersey, and Dick is a Princeton halfback, six feet tall.

Margaret Mason Writes of Gotham Fads and Fashions

By Margaret Mason. (Written for the United Press.)
Adieu, farewell you plain gold band. That once adorned each fair bride's hand; It seems that you are to be canned. If vulgarly we phrase it, The modern bride now takes the stand. That she must have a ring more grand. On bridegroom's purse 'twill make demand. But he will have to raise it.
New York, Dec. 4.—The girl next door is going to be married next week. Her prospective supporter is busy looking for a job in the meantime. The wedding bells may ring a little flat to the bridegroom's ears, but there'll be nothing flat about the wedding ring. It's platinum, set with eleven diamonds.
An unchained gold band may be chaste, but it isn't chased after by the 1915 model brides. After all, this golden link in Hymen's fetters might just as well be as ornate as it is binding.
It was a step toward emancipation when the brides of seven or eight years ago cast off the massive and cumbersome bull's-eye band of their grandmothers and spanned their dainty little left third fingers with a narrow yellow circlet.

ation, especially as the county was so well adapted to Jerseys and enough breeders were interested to form a strong organization.
Among those present today and who signed as members of the temporary organization, were, C. S. Bowne, Aumville; Henry Zorn, Aurora; Warren Gray, Jefferson; Charles Cannon, Turner; L. W. Potter, Salem; R. M. Fox, Silverton and Frank A. Doerfler, Silverton.

A PIONEER MAP.

(Medford Mail Tribune.)
Mrs. Helen Haskins of Medford has an interesting pioneer relic in a government map of the "Oregon Territory," published in 1811, containing the "latest information of the Hudson Bay company and Lieut. Fremont's U. S. T. E. exploration east of the Rocky mountains. The Oregon territory extends from the northern California boundary, 42 degrees parallel to 54 degrees 40 minutes north, containing all that region west of the Rocky mountains. The map shows the coast line from Cape Mendocino to Dixon's entrance. A smaller map shows the Columbia river from Fort Walla Walla to its mouth.
The map printed before the day of surveys in the west, is primarily the work of exploration parties and Hudson Bay trappers. Portland is not on the map, as it did not then exist. Neither is Oregon City, Salem, Albany, Eugene or other now flourishing cities. Astoria and "Champoing" alone are shown. Missions are shown at the mouth of the "Klakkamus," at St. Paul and on the Willamette. Fort Umpqua, near the mouth of that stream, is the only fort shown south of Fort Vancouver.
The Willamette and Umpqua rivers are shown, as is the "Too-too-tul-na or Klamet" river, with a northern tributary, the "Shaste." Smith's river is shown as emptying into the sea at about the present site of Crescent City, and the "Klamet" about where the Rogue empties. No home river is given, but the "Shaste" flows in its place with the "Nasty" river as its northern branch.
"Mt. McLoughlin" is shown, somewhat north of its location, as one of the three main peaks of the Cascades. Hood and Jefferson the other two, from which it is evident that the mountain was one of the early day landmarks, named by Hudson Bay trappers after Dr. John McLoughlin, factor of the company, "father of Oregon," thirty years before the squawman Pitt named the mountain after himself.
This map should prove conclusively that Mt. McLoughlin is the correct name of the sentinel of the Rogue, a name familiar to all pioneers, recognized by legislative statute in Oregon and by the national geographic board. People of southern Oregon should cease calling it by a false name that means nothing.

Marion County Jersey Breeders Organize

Among those who attended the organization of the Marion County Jersey Breeders association, there was a general feeling that Marion county was especially adapted for Jersey cattle, and that as this had been one of the pioneer counties raising Jerseys, a Jersey breeding association could easily be maintained.
At the meeting held yesterday in the commercial club, Henry Zorn, of St. Paul, was elected temporary president, and F. S. Craig of this city, secretary. After the temporary organization and addresses by several who are in the Jersey cattle business, the meeting adjourned to meet again the second Saturday in January.

Robert Burkhardt, president of the state organization and also president of the Linn County Breeders' association, addressed the meeting, stating the general benefits derived from a county organization. Prof. D. C. Howard, of the dairy department of the U. A. C. spoke on the advantages of an association. E. E. Flavell, editor of the Western Farmer, of Spokane, and secretary and treasurer of the Northwestern Swine Breeders association, was present and spoke briefly. The consensus of opinion was that Marion county should support a Jersey association.
